Recognizing and managing children with food allergies at the pediatric dental visit. The use of alternative feeding methods, such as finger-feeding and use of special equipment in the dental office, is increasing, particularly in the pediatric population. In this article, the author provides an overview of the historical background of pediatric food allergies, a discussion of the increasing use of alternative feeding methods in dentistry, and guidance for the dental health care provider regarding appropriate management of children with food allergies. The dental health care provider may be the first health care provider to recognize a food allergy, as the onset of symptoms in children with food allergies may occur in the dental office. Children with food allergies may present with symptoms at any dental visit. Although some children with food allergies may be able to manage their food allergies in the dental office, others may need to use alternative methods of food intake. Dental health care providers should be familiar with when and where the child with food allergies will exhibit symptoms and ask parents about the history of the child's food allergies. If a child exhibits symptoms in the dental office, they must be recognized by the dental care provider as a patient with food allergies. The dental health care provider should be aware of alternative feeding methods, including the use of special equipment, for the dental office, and be able to provide this equipment to the child. An effective communication between the child's physician and dentist is important to ensure that patients with food allergies have a positive experience at the dental visit.

Q: Ideal file structure for Drupal website I have a Drupal website (a few modules) and I want to move it to a better file structure. I have two questions: 1- How can I correctly move the files? 2- Which Drupal file should I move to which file? (I'm using these modules: CCK with the Advanced Views module (pretty nice, but I can't figure out the way to use it) Swap HTML The "module moved to new location" module is configurable. Do I want it to use the same home page, the same htmls, or what?) Views Views Slideshow ImageCache File Entity A: Always preferred to start with the basic Drupal structure: automated backup process on every site change (sites/backup) temporary files (sites/temp) sites/all/libraries (functionality) sites/all/modules (functionality)
